

Interdisciplinary Studies in Liberal Arts and Sciences

Cross-Departmental Degree Programs

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offers graduate degrees that cross multiple departments and units. For information on these, see:

- Center for East Asian Studies (<http://ceas.ku.edu/>);
- Center for Global and International Studies (<http://global.ku.edu/>);
- Indigenous Studies Program (<https://indigenous.ku.edu/>);
- Center for Latin American & Caribbean Studies (<https://clacs.ku.edu/>);
- Museum Studies Program (<https://museumstudies.ku.edu/>); and
- Center for Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies (<https://crees.ku.edu/>).

Cross-departmental studies that have no defined degree program may be authorized upon petition. See Interdisciplinary Studies in the Graduate Studies section of the online catalog for more information.

Graduate students in degree programs may add a graduate certificate in the following areas:

- African Studies
- American Studies
- Applied Behavior Analysis
- Applied Math
- Chemical Biology
- City and County Management
- Community Health and Development
- East Asian Cultures
- Environmental Assessment
- Environmental Justice
- Geographic Information Science
- Health Psychology
- Indigenous Studies
- Medieval and Early Modern Studies
- Museum Studies
- Performance Management
- Religious Studies
- Second Language Studies
- Women, Gender and Sexuality Studies

Information on these Graduate Certificate Programs may be found in this catalog in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences' Overview section.