

Bachelor of Arts in Slavic, German, and Eurasian Studies

Why pursue German Studies?

Knowledge of the language and culture of German-speaking Europe provides students with linguistic and transcultural competence that will enable them to participate productively in a rapidly changing world. German is an official language in six central European countries and the most widely spoken language in the European Union. The United States maintains important economic, political, security, and cultural ties with the German-speaking countries. About 50 million people in the United States claim German ancestry.

Our students complete a diverse and challenging program that encompasses not only the German language but also courses that explore literature, the arts, history, business, and politics. Our program is characterized by interdisciplinary flexibility, a variety of co-curricular activities, and personalized academic advising and mentoring. German Studies students acquire research skills they need to study issues relevant to our field. Many German Studies majors and minors study abroad for a summer, semester, or year, often supported by departmental scholarships, and some complete internships in Germany. All German Studies students have opportunities to make use of the rich resources available at KU, including the Spencer Museum of Art, KU Libraries, Max Kade Center for German-American Studies, Office of Study Abroad, and Center for Undergraduate Research. Our students tend to have a second major or a minor in fields such as Global & International Studies, History, Business, Environmental Studies, Music, Microbiology, and Linguistics.

Our graduates have pursued their passion for language and culture in many ways: working for a non-profit organization affiliated with the U.S. Department of State; translating for a medical software company; serving on the human resources team of a global German sporting goods company; teaching high school German; working as copy editor of a newspaper; and pursuing graduate work in Germanic languages & literatures, social welfare, law, and speech pathology.

Why pursue Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies?

The University of Kansas Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies (REES) program covers a broad geographic region, home to rich and diverse cultures that have had an enormous impact on today's world. Interdisciplinary study of Russia, Eastern Europe, and Eurasia creates informed citizens with in-depth understanding of this geopolitically and culturally critical world region, which plays a central role in today's political, economic, cultural, and environmental issues.

The KU REES program is collaborative and interdisciplinary in nature and offers a unique opportunity to study contemporary politics and medieval history, environmental problems and great works of literature and art, as well as multiple other related subjects. It offers opportunities to study abroad in a variety of culturally rich, exciting places. Crucially, it prepares students for a wide range of careers in research, business, government, and the nonprofit sector, with the opportunity to make a profound impact on both national and international levels.

Why pursue Slavic Studies?

If you have turned on a TV set or logged on Twitter lately, you probably have seen a news item on Russia or Ukraine, not to mention countries like Turkey and Iran. From Russian, Polish, Ukrainian, to Bosnian/Croatian/Montenegrin/Serbian (BCMS), to Czech, Turkish, Persian/Tajik/Dar/Farsi, to Yiddish, our department offers only critical languages. In fact, the US government classifies these languages as critical (<https://www.nsepnet.org/aboutus.aspx>) for national security interests, and there are a number of federal scholarships that you can apply for to study them.

Think about how Russia has become a power player even in just US politics the last few years through #hacking or other cybersecurity threats. With the end of the Cold War, the study of languages like Russian has considerably decreased in the US, and as this language has become more important to national security and the global economy, there are not nearly enough Americans who speak it. The US government and national and international employers need individuals with specialized language skills. Some of these languages can be more challenging, but we commit to helping students advance in them. You do not need to have special language abilities to study a language like Russian, you just have to come to class and do the same things you would in any other class, just with a more fun alphabet. And if you consider how many people study more commonly taught languages like Spanish and French, statistically, studying a language like Russian really sets us apart with employers, because you bring in unique skills and expertise. And if you don't believe us, you can take a look at our success stories (<https://sges.ku.edu/success-stories/>).

Our department offers comprehensive undergraduate programs in Russian, Polish, and Bosnian/Croatian/Serbian, Turkish, Persian/Tajik/Dar/Farsi. For each language, we offer core curricula emphasizing all four skills: speaking, listening, reading and writing. We also offer intensive introductory Russian in Lawrence during the summer. Because of how foundational to our identities and personal growth study abroad opportunities can be, we offer students multiple opportunities to learn these languages outside of Lawrence. Think about all the great selfies you could take in to these beautiful, off-the-beaten path places! You can go to Moscow, Russia and study at the Higher School of Economics for a semester. Or you can spend your summers in Nur-Sultan, Kazakhstan, or Zadar, Croatia and Lviv, Ukraine.

And we don't just offer language learning. Our department is multi-disciplinary and we want our students to come out with strong cultural awareness of the region, but also core critical thinking and writing skills. So you can study a language, but also learn about vampires in Slavic and American culture, or robots and sci-fi writings, explore the linguistic reflections of identity, while reading about socialism, Marxism, and other varieties of Russian political thought.

We welcome applicants from all backgrounds to consider a Slavic major or minor in combination with another field of study.

Undergraduate Admission

Admission to KU

All students applying for admission must send high school and college transcripts to the Office of Admissions. Prospective first-year students should be aware that KU has qualified admission requirements that all new first-year students must meet to be admitted. Consult the Office of Admissions (<http://admissions.ku.edu/>) for application deadlines and specific admission requirements.

Visit the International Support Services (<http://www.iss.ku.edu/>) for information about international admissions.

Students considering transferring to KU may see how their college-level course work will transfer on the Office of the University Registrar (<https://registrar.ku.edu/credittransfer/>) website.

Requirements for the B.A. Major

The student completes a minimum of 30 hours of study (29 hours for Russian emphasis) in one of 5 concentrations: German, Polish, Russian, South Slavic (Bosnian/Croatian/Montenegrin/Serbian), and Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies. The department encourages students to fulfill core requirements from courses in the SLAV 140/SLAV 141, SLAV 144/SLAV 145, and SLAV 148/SLAV 149 series, GERM general education courses, or the REES 110/REES 111/REES 310 or REES 220/REES 221 series. Beyond the minimum required hours, students are strongly encouraged to take additional courses in the Slavic, German, and Eurasian Studies department and appropriate background courses in the history, philosophy, and political science of the respective regions.

German Studies Concentration

We offer students a diverse and challenging program in the language and culture of German-speaking Europe, including literature, the arts, history, business, and politics. Courses at the 100, 200, and 300 levels emphasize student involvement with the aim of developing students' use of the German language, including the ability to comprehend, interpret, and produce spoken, written, and multimedia texts in different genres. Cultural topics are integrated into instruction starting in the first semester. At the 400 and 500 levels, survey courses provide students with a broader perspective on German cultural traditions, while other advanced courses often have a thematic focus.

Courses taken in departments such as the history of art, philosophy, political science, sociology, and theatre will enhance students' study of the language and culture of German-speaking Europe.

First- and Second-Year Preparation

The following should be completed as early as possible:

Code	Title	Hours
GERM 104	Elementary German I	5
GERM 108	Elementary German II	5

Required Courses

After completion of GERM 108 Elementary German II, students must complete 18 credits as follows:

Code	Title	Hours
GERM 201	Intermediate German I	3
GERM 202	Intermediate German II	3
GERM 301	High Intermediate German I	3
GERM 302	High Intermediate German II	3
GERM 315	Magic, Murder, Monsters: German Literature and the Modern Era	3
GERM 580	Senior Capstone Course: Topics in German Studies	3
Elective Courses		12

Satisfied by a minimum of 12 credit hours of GERM courses at the 300, 400, and 500 levels. These courses may be taught in either English or German and, with permission of the Director of Undergraduate Studies, up to six credit hours may be counted toward the concentration by completing courses offered by other departments with significant content related to German-speaking Europe. Eligible courses include JWSH 343 and POLS 443.

Total Hours

30

* Student who place in GERM 301 will receive retroactive credit for GERM 201 and GERM 202

German Studies students are strongly encouraged to study abroad and should discuss this opportunity with the Director of Undergraduate Studies early in their undergraduate career.

Major Hours & Major GPA

While completing all required courses, majors must also meet each of the following hour and GPA minimum standards:

Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies Concentration

The Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies (REES) concentration offers students the opportunity to undertake the interdisciplinary study of Russia, Eastern Europe, and Eurasia, training the next generation of professionals, policymakers, and citizens to understand and engage this geopolitically vital and culturally diverse world region.

The REES concentration, offered in partnership with KU's nationally-recognized Center for Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies, allows students to take a wide array of courses across traditional disciplinary boundaries to gain expertise in Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies. The concentration pairs the study of language and culture with courses on the region's history and politics. Allowing students to choose from a range of offerings based on their interests and culminating in an intensive research capstone experience, the concentration offers a flexible course of study within the Department of Slavic, German, and Eurasian Studies and is easily paired with a double major in Global & International Studies, History, or Political Science.

Code Title Hours

Prerequisite Language Skills

Students selecting this concentration must complete 4th semester proficiency in a Russian, East European, or Eurasian Language. This entails completion of one of the following courses, or its equivalent:

Major Hours & Major GPA

While completing all required courses (above), majors must also meet each of the following hour and grade-point average minimum standards:

Major Hours

Satisfied by 30 hours of major courses.

Major Hours in Residence

Satisfied by a minimum of 15 hours of KU resident credit in the major.

Major Junior/Senior (300+) Hours

Satisfied by a minimum of 18 hours from junior/senior courses (300+) in the major.

Major Junior/Senior (300+) Graduation GPA

Satisfied by a minimum of a 2.0 KU GPA in junior/senior courses (300+) in the major. GPA calculations include all junior/senior courses in the field of study including F's and repeated courses. See the Semester/Cumulative GPA Calculator (<https://sis.ku.edu/gpa-calculator/>).

Sample 4-year plans for the BA degree in Slavic, German, and Eurasian Studies with concentrations in the following can be found here: German Studies, (<https://catalog.ku.edu/liberal-arts-sciences/slavic-languages-literature/ba/german-studies/>) Polish (<https://catalog.ku.edu/liberal-arts-sciences/slavic-languages-literature/ba/polish-studies/>), Russian (<https://catalog.ku.edu/liberal-arts-sciences/slavic-languages-literature/ba/russian/>), Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies (<https://catalog.ku.edu/liberal-arts-sciences/slavic-languages-literature/ba/russian-east-european-urasian-studies/>), South Slavic Studies (<https://catalog.ku.edu/liberal-arts-sciences/slavic-languages-literature/ba/south-slavic-studies/>) or by using the left-side navigation.

At the completion of this program, students will be able to:

- Communicate orally in the target language at the ACTFL (American Council on the teaching of Foreign Languages) proficiency level of at least Intermediate Mid.
- Be able to perform key functions in target language writing (describe, narrate, explain, summarize, and compare) with sufficient control of grammar and mechanics such that a sympathetic native speaker will be able to follow the student's train of thought.
- Demonstrate critical and reflective awareness of social and cultural differences between the target cultures studied and student's own culture/s.
- Synthesize knowledge and understanding of the history, linguistic development, cultural production such as, but not limited to, literature and visual media, and politics of the region of study.

Departmental Honors

Undergraduates with a grade-point average of 3.5 in Slavic courses are eligible for departmental honors. Before enrolling, students must consult an undergraduate advisor to formulate an appropriate topic. Students complete SLAV 499 Honors Thesis (3 hours above the major requirements) during 1 semester of the senior year. The honors thesis is evaluated by a committee of 3 faculty members. The candidate makes an oral defense before this committee.

Study Abroad

The department offers a semester study abroad program at the Higher School of Economics in Moscow, Russia, and in conjunction with the Center for Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies (<https://crees.ku.edu/>), conducts summer institutes at universities in

- L'viv, Ukraine (for Ukrainian) (<https://studyabroad.ku.edu/language-institute-lviv-ukraine/>)

Consult the Slavic department (<http://slavic.ku.edu/>) office or the Office of Study Abroad (<http://www.studyabroad.ku.edu/>). Credit for non-KU programs is not automatic and is evaluated in consultation with the Slavic department undergraduate director.

Undergraduate and graduate students at KU are encouraged to spend a summer, semester, and/or year studying and conducting research in their country of interest.

Slavic Language Programs in Russia and Eastern Europe

KU students may take intermediate or advanced Bosnian/Croatian/Serbian at a 6-week summer institute in Croatia or attend a summer language program in Poland.

Graduate students at KU are encouraged to spend a summer, semester, and/or year studying and conducting research in their country of interest.
